Art Unit: 1761

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-9 and 12-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stoltz in view of Fennema and Patel et al for the reasons set forth in rejecting the claims in the last Office action (October 3, 2003).

Stoltz discloses a flavor enhancer formulation comprising oil and a flavor (see entire patent, especially column 10, lines 35-56).

The claims differ as to the use of specific flavor enhancers and the use of silicon dioxide.

All of the claimed flavor enhancers are notoriously well-known in the art and are used merely for their art-recognized function. Fennema discloses nucleotide flavor enhancers including MSG, disodium guanylate, and disodium inosinate (see pages 734, 735, and 816).

Patel et al disclose a flavor composition comprising silicon dioxide, where the silicon dioxide is used as a thickener (see entire patent, especially the abstract and claim 3).

It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to use any of the claimed flavor enhancers and silicon dioxide as taught by Fennema and Patel et al in that of Stoltz because the use of flavor enhancers and the use of silicon dioxide is conventional in the art.

It is also noted that flavors may be delivered in different forms such as liquid and particulate where both are conventional in the art as evidenced by the available flavorants on any supermarket shelf.

Applicant's arguments filed April 8, 2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that the claimed invention is directed to how to deliver water-soluble enhancers to foods via an oil phase.

Applicant's claims are directed to a product. Applicant does not claim a delivery process.

Stoltz clearly teaches the use of a flavor enhancer formulation comprising oil and a flavor dispersed through the oil as stated above. Stoltz does not exclude water-soluble flavors. In column 2, lines 54-58, Stoltz teaches flavor in general.

Fennema teaches well-known flavor enhancers and Patel is cited to teach the conventional use of silicon dioxide.

It is not seen where Applicant's claims differ from that which is obvious to the prior art.

The recitation that the product is made by a new process, if the process were indeed new and patentable, does not render an otherwise unpatentable product new and patentable. It is pointed out that the claims are product claims and not process claims. The product must stand on its own invention, independently of the process of producing same. See In re Marosi, 218 USPQ 195; In re Thorpe, 227 USPQ 964; Ex parte Jungfer, 18 USPQ 2nd 1976.

In the absence of unexpected results, it is not seen how the claimed invention differs from the teachings of the prior art. Applicant's claims are drawn to a combination of known components which produces expected results, see In re Kerkhoven 205 USPQ 1069 and In re Gershon 152 USPQ 602.

All of the claim limitations and arguments have been considered. None of them are seen as serving as basis for patentability. No claim is allowed.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
